

Pastoral Care at The Assam Valley School has scaled new heights over the past one year. With all the efforts being put in by us, this school has really become a home away from home for both the teachers and the taught.

This School was envisioned to produce future leaders and I am delighted to report that over the last two decades we have done just that. An AVS education is all about taking on new responsibilities, never giving up when faced with obstacles, being creative, innovative and resilient. Leadership is inculcated in all our students right from the time they step into this school. Be it taking care of school property or ensuring we successfully organise and win a major tournament, each Aviator is motivated to keep the AVS flag flying high. The Summer Fest is perhaps one of the best examples of student leadership and determination as it is an event that is almost entirely driven by the students. From the stage of conceptualization to the very end, the students take care and manage everything. Despite the inclement weather, the Summer Fest this year was a roaring success and our students exhibited a spirit of resilience and the show went on unabated. Mrs. Mrinmoyee Sharma, mother of Aditya Raj Sharma, our Taekwondo champion, and her troupe simply mesmerized our students with their performances at the Rock Fest. I am ever so grateful to them.

Having one of our former students, Ms. Janice Pariat, a renowned novelist as one of our guests at the 'Meet the Author' event was truly special. Janice, a Bhoroli girl touched a chord in many a heart when she went down memory lane.

The real essence of a residential school best comes to light when the entire community comes together to celebrate festivals. To quote, Sadguru- 'The most important thing today is to make human beings rise to a sense of inclusiveness beyond gender, race, religion, and nationhood.' I am happy to report that we at AVS have nearly perfected this art and there is no bias of any kind on this campus.

It was indeed a pleasure to see the AVS community congregate as one big family on Republic Day, Saraswati Puja, Holi, Bihu, Eid and Diwali. The students took on the responsibility of planning, organizing and so meticulously executing these events. I am particularly proud of our students and staff who opted to celebrate a green Diwali and also provide joy to the poor families around the school by presenting them with gift hampers from the money they collected. The Girls' houses collected money separately to provide lunch and a movie for the children of our support staff and presented all the workers in the Boarding Houses with a token of their appreciation on the day of Diwali. The Utility Workers on the Boys' side were also felicitated on this occasion.

Jam sessions comprising of excruciatingly high levels of music and sumptuous meals with mixed dining are the incentives of such labours that the students always look forward to and we, as teachers never grudge them these small but significant pleasures.

Our students had the privilege of performing at the Assam Valley Literary Awards Ceremony. Seventy three students took part in the event. Our presentations were appreciated by the entire audience present on the occasion. It was a wonderful opportunity for our students and teachers and we are grateful to the facilitators for providing us with such a big platform.

We are in the process of developing a new Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) System for your convenience. Parents will soon be able to obtain all the information that they require about their child's academic and pastoral progress, fee payments, health status, activities and sports at school by going online and logging into the Parental Dash Board. In the near future we will be able to provide this facility to you on your mobile phone as well through an Android / iOS App that we are also in the process of developing.

The Assam Valley School is now a force to be reckoned with. We have received excellence awards from a number of different organizations. A few noteworthy mentions are:

The NDTV Excellence Awards adjudged The Assam Valley School as the No.1 school in the country on the following parameters:

- School Category in Infrastructure
- School category in Co-curricular

Our school was also declared the undisputed leader in the East Zonal Category in the following parameters:

- School category in Academics
- School category in Pedagogy
- School category in Infrastructure
- School category in Co-curricular

We are ranked the 4th Best Co-educational Boarding School in India by the Education World Survey and continue to remain the No.1 school in the said category in the East.

Future 50 Schools Shaping Success is a first of its kind certification presented by Fortune India and University. The initiative aims to recognize the efforts put in by schools in crafting students' careers and shaping success. What sets it apart is that it is not an event but a year long process to help schools reach new heights and further improvise on ensuring student success. We have been recognised as one among India's Top 50 Fortune Future Schools shaping success in India.

India Today TV in association with Great Place to Study televised a programme on AVS on 14th October, 2017 and we have received some rave reviews about the same.

The Cambridge University published a journal recently to celebrate their 800th Anniversary, showcasing innovative thinking at Cambridge and other institutions around the world. Only three schools from India were identified as Innovators. I am delighted to inform you that we are one of them.

One of the greatest strengths of AVS is its teachers and the quality of their teaching. The development of all staff – teaching, specialised and ancillary – is a core agenda of the School. I am grateful for the collective efforts of our staff who willingly support the School's objectives and ensure that the quality of their practice and subsequent impact on students' learning is of the highest standard possible.

Now in its 22nd year of operation, the School remains a convivial, vibrant and stimulating place for our students to learn and play. While there have been changes in relation to the size of the student population, number of staff and infrastructure, there are a number of factors that have not altered, primarily the nurturing of students' wellbeing and the delivery of an authentic curriculum.

In our effort to reach out to parents, who are our partners in educating our students, I visited Kohima, Dimapur, Dibrugarh and Tinsukia to meet and greet our parents there. These sessions were very well attended and a lot of healthy deliberations transpired. I felt a great sense of warmth and genuine concern for this institution among our parents and would like to reiterate my commitment to them and their wards. In the days ahead, I hope to reach out to more parents in their hometowns thus paving the way not only for better communication and goodwill but also for greater transparency in our operations.

It is important to acknowledge the priceless contribution of a number of people to the School. First of all, I sincerely applaud the important influence of the members of the Governing Body. Their judgement and practice are critical to our execution of agreed goals and future projects. I am especially indebted to the Officiating Chairman of the Governing Body, Mr. Summerscale, who has, for many years, navigated the School through both its triumphs and struggles. I shall be failing in my duty, if I did not place on record my gratitude for Mrs. Kavita Khaitan who has whole heartedly supported the school in developing the infrastructure, in the last few years. Her vision and concern for the students is admirable.

Furthermore, my special thanks are tendered to the members of the Senior Management Team for the staunch support that they have rendered to me.

It has been another terrific year of engagement for our community. We have unitedly withstood all storms and have tasted sweet success many a times in the year gone by. I am thankful for the efforts of many people who have supported the School during good and bad times alike. Our wonderful parents have contributed to the School in so many positive ways and I am eternally grateful to them.

Moreover, I wish to offer my thanks and best wishes to the entire student community. I wish the Year 12s well in their enterprises, buoyed by the knowledge that they have been shaped by, the values of this great school, and I promise them that they will always remain part of the AVS community.

Thank you once again for your trust, time and patience! I reiterate my commitment to my extended family at AVS and assure you that we will continue to grow from strength to strength in the days ahead!

Thank you!

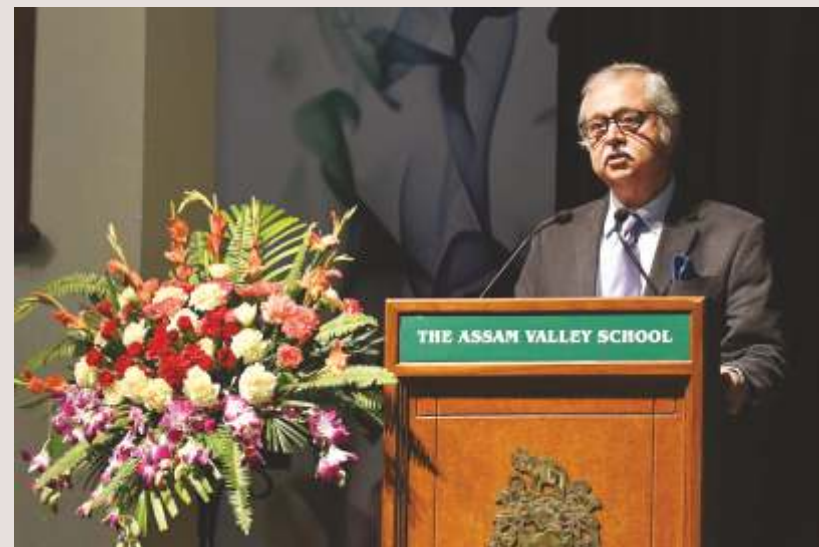

Inauguration of the New Music, Dance and Sports Complex

By the Chief Guest, Dr. Rudranshu Mukherjee

Address by the Chief Guest, Dr. Rudranshu Mukherjee (Excerpts)

Well, I am deeply honoured to be the Chief Guest at the Founders Day of this school. Founders Day is a day of celebration and everyone is in a joyous and jubilant mood. No one, least of all the students, is quite in the right frame to listen to a speech. I was compelled to do so because I knew behind this request to be here as the Chief Guest there was the hand of one remarkable individual and I want to pause a bit before I go into the substance of my speech to express publically my personal gratitude to this human being, Mr. B.M Khaitan. I feel aware of the enormous debt this school's teachers, staff and students owe to him as the maker of the Assam Valley School. My gratitude is of a different nature altogether. I have ceased counting how many times he, from the infinite goodness of his heart, has indulged me with his affection. I consider this to be a very special privilege in my life. Behind my presence here today there is the quiet and deceptive presence of Mr. Khaitan. Therefore Mr. Khaitan, I salute you on the Founders Day of your school. For being the outstanding individual that you are.

I went to a day school in Calcutta and it was located in a very crowded path of the city. I did not have any campus to talk about. The playing field of the school was barely the size of a small football field, but it was a very good school in the academic standards that it maintained in my time there is the 1960's it was considered one of the best schools in Calcutta in terms of the results that it provided. However, in terms of sports and outdoor extra-curricular activities, it had very little to offer and this was very frustrating to me. Believe me, up to class 9, that is around the age of 14-15, I had a single point ambition in my life and that was to play cricket for India. My school offered no facilities either to practice or to play cricket of any standard. Hence, till my late adolescence I was a very frustrated individual in school. Therefore, I could not help but notice the contrast with your school and I have to confess that I am just a little envious even in my old age.

All of you perhaps don't realise it now but as you go on in life all of you will realise how fortunate you were to belong to a school that offers such outstanding sporting facilities. I was so deeply touched when I saw all the presentations on sports and how well you actually utilise these facilities. They are there for you to use them, take advantage of them. There is another perhaps even more important point that occurred to me as I went around the school. We at Calcutta Boys School had very little contact with the natural world. So, I grew up with no interest or no knowledge of the natural world. You have the advantage because your campus is so close to nature. You can observe nature, learn about it and get to love it. Knowledge and awareness about the environment is not only an important part of your development but in today's world, is a critical element in the survival of the globe and all living beings including us humans. We destroy nature needlessly only to destroy ourselves in the long run. Learning about the environment through direct contact with nature leads us to gain awareness about ourselves as well.

Too much of our education has become result and goal oriented. A school is judged in India today by the kind of results it gets at the board exams. No school is hardly ever evaluated in terms of the education that it provides that leads automatically to the question; "What do I seek?". The root word for education is 'educad' which means to meet forth, to go beyond. To put it in more simple terms education is about opening up the door and windows of the mind of students. I'm convinced that the values of the Assam Valley School are an exception for the generalization I am about to make. A firm master in a very old public school in England always asked his senior students when he met them for the first time. This was his question; "So chaps, what would you want me to do, cram your head instantly or open up your minds?". We need to work collectively and individually to change the thrust that education has come to acquire and priorities that the society has come to set for itself. How can we do this? The first and the most important thing is to train and encourage our students to read. This will of course not happen automatically but it will happen if we ignite the interest of students in the subjects that we teach. All too often learning by rote is the preferred mode of teaching since rote learning produces results; it also produces rot. Nothing kills the excitement and the joy of learning than teaching mechanically. Subjects become instruments to procure a good job. I want to turn away from the teachers briefly and focus on my young friends on this side of the auditorium.

I understand that the vast majority of you come from different paths of the surrounding area which is the north-east of India and I also understand that because of the locational advantage that you enjoy, the students of the school in their various activities always uphold the very rich cultural traditions of the north east. May I suggest that these activities of yours will become further enriched and more enjoyable if you begin to educate yourselves with the help of your teachers about these cultural practices and about the festival with which many of them are associated. I assure you that learning can be achieved by reading more about them. Your interest in the other things that you love will be unharmed by your reading. Your reading will also enable all of you to understand and appreciate how the many cultural practices of the north-east are a part of a diverse cultural pattern of the Indian sub-continent. You will thus be able to move beyond yourselves and be educated and thereby be the free ambassador of the Assam Valley School whose aim is to provide education.

I will end with a very favourite anecdote of mine. An old man was walking in a very dark lane which had only gas lamps on one side of the lane. In the darkness he dropped something valuable perhaps a gold coin and he began to look for the coin under the small glow of light that one of the gas lamps had created on the road. He went down on all fours to look for the coin that he had dropped. A passerby stopped, curious and eager to help. He asked the old man "Are you sure you dropped it here?". The old man said, "No, I didn't drop it here, I dropped it on the other side of the lane." So the passerby completely bewildered asked, "Then why are you looking under the lamp if you know you dropped it on the other side of the lane?" The old man said, "I am looking for it here because there is light." I ask you, I urge you just as yesterday's play said, 'If you try to kill hope'. There is a conscience that will not allow you to kill hope, there is nothing in the world that can extinguish light, move towards light in whatever way you can.

Thank you and God bless you all.
